Greetings from the President:

Friends, Iowa beekeepers,

As I take a minute to write this, I can’t help but tell you what a fall we have had. The rain in areas was record setting! Honey harvest in places was great and in other areas almost nothing. Iowa is very much made of highs and lows. Average, they call it.

I have learned a hard, costly lesson in beekeeping this year: If you don’t look at your hives in September there is a very good chance they will abscond by Oct 10th! I know better. I have been running seven days a week trucking, and trying to get stuff done is next to impossible. I have way too many hives full of mites. It is very depressing seeing these bees trying to make brood when mite loads are beyond counting. I am trying to salvage some. I treated a few hives with Hopguard 2 strips in early August. Those hives don’t look too bad. I hate dwelling on the subject of varroa mites, but I feel this is EXTREMELY important to successful beekeeping today. Do checks in early spring, early summer, summer, and early fall. MAKE SURE YOU KNOW WHAT IS REALLY GOING ON.

We all will be doing our final winter preparation now. So I hope you all can then enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday. A time to give thanks and Gather with family.

A beekeeper is always optimistic. Next year...... We must start planning soon. What will I do different, the same, or not at all? More hives? Cut a yard out over there? It seems we start this soon after winter sets in. I have noticed this over the years at meetings or events—planning for next year is always a hot winter topic!

The fall is upon us, and I can’t help but mention that our beginning bee classes will be starting sooner than one might want to think about. I very much enjoy teaching beginning beekeeping. To talk bees in January is fun for me and I challenge anyone with bees to assist or start a class. Now is the time to do this, since we have a lot of interest in beekeeping in the state. Let’s make a difference here.

The time has come for me to hit the road so I must wrap this up. I want you all to have a very good Thanksgiving and be safe as the holiday season is upon us.

I have to steal a line from Mary Wiltgen—“Bee a blessing!”

Sincerely, Roy Kraft, IHPA President

Youth Scholarship

Hello everyone, I am happy to report that I’ve been receiving some good applicants in the mail for the youth scholarship program and am looking forward to meeting these very enthusiastic students. I will be needing mentors for the new scholarships students, so when you see me at the annual meeting and would like to become a mentor, please sign up to be one. If you don’t become one this year, I keep them on file and may call you when I have a student in your area for years following. Also, if you’d like to see more on the webpage please contact me with your ideas at iowahoneyproducers.org......Thank you and see you soon at the annual meeting.

Eric Kenoyer
IHAP-Youth Scholarship Coordinator
Greetings from the Vice President:

This is it! The time has come for our Annual Meeting and Convention – November 11th and 12th! So much work, time, and effort has gone into the preparation of this event for you all. Thank you to everyone who has helped put this together. It does take many, and I so appreciate all who volunteered their time and talents.

Hotels are filling up fast. Get your reservations in. Please plan on attending the Queen’s Luncheon, Banquet, and Director’s meals. We have so much going on at each event. You don’t want to miss out. Besides, you have to eat somewhere. May as well enjoy time with fellow beekeepers. Couldn’t be in a better place!

Wow, we have an amazing list of speakers for our conference. There is a short bio for each included in this edition of our newsletter. Longer bios will be read at the meeting and, for most, you can see a picture of them on the website at www.iowahoneyproducers.org. We have such a GREAT line-up this year with a wide variety of topics being discussed at all different beekeeping levels of expertise.

In fact, on Saturday afternoon, you will have the option of choosing your level of expertise and going to a session related only to that level! Charlotte Hubbarb, from Michigan, will be speaking with beginning beekeepers. Pat Ennis and Alex Ebert have teamed up to talk with and discuss the concerns and needs of advanced beekeepers. Bob Fastbinder and Curt Bronnenberg will share their experiences and strategies of the commercial beekeeper. The only problem you may have is deciding on which session to go to! As for myself and Tim, we just might have to split up to get as much info as we can from these experts in the beekeeping field! Hopefully, we are addressing the many needs of all our beekeepers at all levels.

A little blurb about the contests...they are all structured the same as before except the photography contest. These will be judged by YOU! People’s Choice! The photos will be available for your viewing and winner(s) will be determined by the amount of $$$money$$$ in their individual container. The proceeds from this will be used to defer some of the costs of the conference as your registration and meal fees do not cover all expenses. Take a picture or develop the many you have on your phone or camera. Put a mat on it (no frames – any size) and bring it with you. Your name on the back is all you need to include! Hope to see a lot of great pics! I know I’m getting mine ready!

The banquet this year is going to be AMAZING! We have James Tew entertaining us with a keynote address about some useless but interesting bee equipment, the crowning of our queen, awards, youth scholarship recipients, a live auction, and, added new this year, a MENTOR AUCTION! Yes, a real, live person auction! Here’s a great list of some of our fellow beekeepers who are volunteering their time to help others in their beekeeping quest:

Roy Kraft – personal tutor 2 hours, 2 times
Pat Ennis – 4 hours making splits
Carly Vannoy – Honeybee themed party for any age
Tim and Mary Wiltgen – Free class, if that doesn’t work out, 4 hours at your apiary or ours
Curt Bronnenberg – your place or mine – 4 hours bee expertise
Eric Kenoyer – at his place, basic beekeeping
Jim Marshall – basic beekeeping
You can HAVE one or more of these EXPERTS at your disposal. All YOU have to do is WIN THE BID!!!!! What a great way to learn and help the IHPA! And.....if there are those of you in the audience who would like to be auctioned off that night, GREAT!!!! Decide on your terms and we will sell you to the highest bidder! Just keep in mind, the winner of the auction and the person auctioned off will work out the details of when and where they would meet and learn. IHPA is only in it for the money! After we get our check, it is up to you to work out the details!!!!!!! The days’ itinerary is in this newsletter and also on the website. There will be copies available at our meeting also. Keep in mind, changes may be made but it is pretty close as to what we hope will happen.

Thank you so much for the support you have given me as your vice-president this year. It has been one of learning and doing - very satisfying and, at times, very stressful. I am stepping down but will continue my support of the IHPA in other ways.

Finally, from Thoreau: “The keeping of bees is like the direction of sunlight.” Think about that one for a while! Wow!

’Bee’ grateful, ’Bee’ blessed, and ’Bee’ a blessing,

Mary Wiltgen, IHPA Vice President

Biographies of our 2016 IHPA Presenters

DR. JAMES E. TEW has been keeping bees for over 40 years. He has a Ph.D. in entomology and is currently a consulting professor at Auburn University, where he conducts beekeeping educational programs and maintains social media systems that support the Alabama beekeeping industry.

In addition to monthly articles for Bee Culture magazine, Jim has authored: Beekeeping Principles, Backyard Beekeeping, Wisdom for Beekeepers, and Beekeeper’s Problem Solver, and manages the website One Tew Bee (www.onetew.com).

For the past 17 years JENNIFER BERRY has been the Apicultural Research Professional and Lab Manager for the University of Georgia Honey Bee Program. Her research objectives have focused on keeping bees alive, the sub-lethal effects of pesticides on beneficial insects and IPM techniques for varroa and small hive beetle control. Jennifer’s extension duties include teaching beekeeping to people from all walks of life, including those in impoverished areas in Central and South America, to those imprisoned in Georgia. She is also passionate about educating the public about the importance of beneficial insects. On weekends and nights she operates Honey Pond Farm, a honey bee venture that sells quality nucleus colonies and teaches how to raise superior queens.

CHARLOTTE HUBBARD keeps 20-30 hives in SW Michigan. With a passion for both helping bees and newbees succeed, she teaches at local, regional and state conferences, often exploring the human-bee dynamic. She is author of Dronings from a Queen Bee and the children’s book If I Could Sit on a Bee’s Knees. Charlotte is an active mentor and provides seasonal tips and insights at www.hubbardhive.com as well as her Facebook page, ‘Charlotte Hubbard, Beekeeper and …’ She’s proud to share that she recently kept a smoker going for well over an hour.

ANDY HEMKEN has a family-owned honey business in Big Bend, WI where he promotes the art of beekeeping and benefits of using local honey through education of consumers, new beekeepers, school groups and community programs. In 1996 Andy started with 2 beehives; he currently admits to 600. After 30 years of safety and ergonomics consulting, he followed his passion and became a full-time beekeeper. He teaches beekeeping classes and other beekeeping-related seminars as well as selling package bees and equipment, and mentoring many local beekeepers. Andy is an occasional writer and contributor to the American Bee Journal. Andy is an avid maker of mead and has over 25 awards for mead making over the years.

Sixteen-year-old JOY WESTERCAMP has been a beekeeper for six seasons, starting with three colonies in 2011 and building to about 40 in 2016. During this expansion phase, Joy has focused on the production of Ross Round comb honey sections to avoid the expense of extracting equipment and to tap into a niche market where many customers are willing to pay a premium for all-natural comb honey, untouched by human hands, which maintains the delicate floral aromas of honey just as the bees preserved it.
MARLIN BUUS, from Ellsworth, Minnesota, started his journey with 4 bee-hives in 1972. He increased his count to 700-800 colonies while teaching for 28 years. In 1980, he built an indoor wintering unit. In 2010 the business was sold as his children were grown and gone, and he and his wife were ready to take a slower path. They say "Once a beekeeper, it's in your blood". So he then became a hobbyist and still wintered the bees inside. He has found much pleasure in his hobby of doing woodworking for his family, which includes his wife of 55 years, 2 children, 5 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. Marlin also enjoys gardening, stained glass work, and of course, one of God's small wonders called a Bee!

Other presenters from our very own IHPA include CURT BRONNENBERG, ALEX EBER, PAT ENNIS, and BOB FASTBINDER. These four amazing beekeepers will enlighten us with their expertise in the advanced and commercial beekeeping sessions on Saturday afternoon. I only wish I knew how many hive tools they have lost or merely misplaced over their careers and how long they can keep their smokers lit! We are truly blessed to have them share with us what they know and will benefit greatly.

ANDY JOSEPH, our State Apiarist, will update us on the ‘State of our State,’ and JULIA McGuire will also present us with an update on the Bee Laws Project.

I need this information to put together a new directory of members across the state. The last directory published in 2014 had a few errors, so we would like to get those corrected and add all of our new members.
So, please, when completing your registration form (whether you are attending the Annual Meeting or not) please provide all information. Our directory will only be as good as the information you provide (and how legible the information is).
Sometimes I need to compare the information on the form to our membership list to be sure I am getting the right family’s membership updated.

Thank You to all the volunteers and Honey Queens
(Note: this was omitted by Editor error last month. Sorry!)

We would like to Thank all the great volunteers and Honey Queens that helped out and made our 2016 Iowa State Fair another success! We would not be able to do this without all of you!
We had some volunteers that made some huge improvements before the fair started and we would like to thank Randy Ruark for trying to keep it cool. He installed the new ceiling fans and fan in the back room. Also some new lighting in the back to make it much easier to find products. Thanks Andy Joseph for making it much faster to get to the back room without having to fight the large crowd. And last but not least, Dave Korver for our beauƟful new display for our beeswax products. We wish we could list each and every one of the volunteers but that would take up the entire Newsletter!

Thank you to all of our queens, Maia Jaycox, (Iowa Honey Queen) Ciera Bronnenberg, (Central Iowa Honey Queen) and Star
Love, (Boone River Honey Queen) for covering the Cooking with Honey talks in the Ag building, rolling candles, sampling honey, running registers, and helping with the lemonade. Thanks also to Carly Vannoy (Friendly Beekeeper of Iowa Honey Queen) and Carole Vannoy for many of the Susan Knapp Center talks. Thank You Jason Foley for helping and putting up with us every day! Thanks to Andy Joseph for the many talks in the Ag building and taking care of our emergency Honey Lemonade extractor leak! A Special Thanks goes out to the Vannoy Family for spending every evening with us cleaning up and restocking shelves for the next day!

We cannot express how much we appreciate each and every one of you! All of you volunteers are what make the Iowa State Fair a huge success!

Thanks again,
Heidi Love and Connie Bronnenberg

It is that time to Bee thinking about the upcoming meeting in November! Donations of items for the queen auctions would be greatly appreciated! These items donated will be on auction, (live or silent). The money raised will help the Honey Queen get to your events!

Thanks, Connie Bronnenberg

NOVEMBER RECIPE from Emma Jakes

Wow! It’s already November and Thanksgiving is only a few weeks away. Where has the time gone? I sat down with the cook book earlier this week and was trying to figure out what kinds of food to make this month when I realized it was so close to Thanksgiving maybe something Thanksgiving-y would be good. So I decided to make roasted sweet potatoes and sweet rolls.

The roasted sweet potatoes were really tasty and pretty simple. This recipe works better with liquid honey instead of crystallized honey. Be sure to turn the potatoes over half way through otherwise they will get burned on the bottom. This recipe takes about two hours from start to finish and the dip is also very good.

Honey Roasted Sweet Potatoes with Honey Cinnamon Dip

2-3 large sweet potatoes washed peeled and cut in to 1-inch cubes
3-4 tablespoons honey
3-4 tablespoons liquid coconut oil (or other oil)
1 tablespoon or to taste
Pinch of salt and pepper to taste
Pumpkin pie spice, nutmeg, ginger, allspice, all optional and to taste

Honey Cinnamon Dip

1/3+ cup plain or vanilla Greek yogurt. Light sour cream works too
2-3 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon cinnamon or to taste

Add all ingredient to a small bowl and whisk until smooth and combined. Transfer to serving dish if desired. Dip will keep air tight for up to a week in the fridge.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease cookie sheet and set aside. (Silpat works also)
Sweet potatoes--put prepared potatoes into gallon-sized Ziplock bag. Add honey, oil, cinnamon, salt and pepper, optional seasonings, seal bag and toss to coat potatoes. Push potatoes at the bottom to the top to equally distribute the honey, oil, and spices.
Use your hands to transfer potatoes to baking tray arrange on baking tray making sure that no potatoes are touching. (Tip: Don’t dump the potatoes onto baking tray because excess marinade will get into baking tray and it’s prone to burning.) Save any remaining marinade in Ziplock bag to be added half way through.
Bake for 20-25 minutes. Flip potatoes over using tongs, and if desired, add remaining marinade.
Bake for 15-20 minutes or until fork-tender and done. Keep a close watch on potatoes for last few minutes to avoid burning. Baking sol will vary, based on your oven, how thick the potatoes are, how full the tray is and how well done you like your potatoes. Optionally (but recommended) serve potatoes with dip or your favorite condiments right after they have cooled.

The sweet rolls were really good and very simple.

Honey Butter Rolls

1/3 cup butter
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons instant dry yeast
1/3 cup honey
½ teaspoons salt
1 large egg
4 cups flour
2 tablespoons butter melted

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Lightly grease a 9”x13” pan. In a small sauce pan melt butter. When butter is melted add in milk and heat to 100 degrees. Add yeast and honey to a bowl and mix. When milk mixture is at temp, add to yeast mixture and stir. Add salt and egg and stir. Stir in 2 cups of flour. Add remaining flour ½ cup at a time until dough clings to sides of bowl. Dough will still be a little sticky.
Flour hands and shape dough into 12 rolls and place on baking sheet. Cover and let rise for ten minutes. Bake 10-12 minutes or until lightly golden. When done baking, melt two tablespoons of butter and brush rolls with the butter.
Month by Month – November

November is the time of the year to wrap things up. Your mite treatments are done, you’ve fed your hives plenty until the pantry is full and the girls are fat, healthy, mite free and happy. Your entrance reducers and mouse guards are in. There is only one more thing to do. The winds of winter are coming and I strongly suggest wrapping your hives or using some type of protection to help insulate them from the winds. You want to wrap, but not so tightly so the hive cannot breathe. The excess moisture needs to escape, or condensation of moisture will be a BIG problem dripping on the bees. One example is to put wood chips on top of the hive’s inner cover surrounded by an empty super with the outer cover on this box. This helps absorb moisture from condensation and stop it from dripping from the inner cover down onto the bees. Some have told us they use Cedar Chips for this, and they believe the cedar helps with mites too. I don’t have any proof of that last statement; it does absorb the moisture, and smells good. A piece of window screen thumb-tacked over the center hole in the inner cover will keep wood shaving from falling through. I cannot stress enough the importance of an upper ventilation hole--MOISTURE ACCUMULATION, NOT COLD, KILLS A COLONY!! I put an upper entrance on all my hives in the inner cover. When snow covers the lower entrance, the hive still has an upper entrance for their cleansing flights. I notch the inner cover with the size of 3/4” x 1/4” for this.

Next, think about how you will wrap your hive. If you have access to tar paper, it will work, but it won’t last but a few years of use. It’s black, so it absorbs the heat, but doesn’t give any, or very little “R” value. It does help stop the wind. Remember to cut a small hole for the upper entrance so the bees have a way out for those sunny warmer days cleansing flights and for moisture to escape (staple the paper to the hive around the hole, to keep bees from getting lost between paper and box). Colony Quilt is a heavy black plastic with a foam backing. It’ll last 6 – 10 years if taken care of. It does have a small “R” value of 3.7. Also remember again to cut that hole for the upper entrance so the bees can take their cleansing flights. To attach the tar paper and colony quilt, you can tie it, duct tape it, screw it, bungee cord it, etc. Another is a Plastic Coated Cardboard Box Winter Wrap. It’s a good choice too. These are not as heavy as I would like to see them, but they may last several years if taken care of. They are easy to use, no stapling or hammering, just slip over your hive and fold the flaps over. Another option is to make your own winter wraps to your personal standards; just remember to have a way for the excess moisture to escape from the hive and a way for the bees to take their cleansing flights!! The goal is to help the bees get thru winter and control moisture condensation.

Jamie Beyer and Linn Wilbur have designed a corrugated plastic box for wintering, and have them for sale. They easily fit a Langstroth hive outside dimensions with about ¼-inch to ½-inch clearance on the inside. They are 31 inches tall which is tall enough to easily cover two deeps and a medium. If you want them shorter they can easily be cut to any height with a circular saw, hand saw or a table saw. Most people want an upper hole in the box (and hive) to allow for moisture escape during the winter. This can be cut in the coroplast with a knife or hole saw. Jamie Beyer and Linn Wilbur have pursued the making of these boxes and did this so that we have quality boxes to cover our hives. They are not available anywhere else. If interested, they are $21 which includes tax. They do not make any profit from these boxes. The money only covers their expenses. If interested, please contact: Jamie Beyer / 269 U Ave./Boone, la 50036. Home 515/433-0194 / Work/Cell 515/231-0215 / beyersbog@aol.com

Do you do all you can to save your bees? I’d like to quote a paragraph from Kim Flottum’s book “Better Beekeeping”, page 142. Would you please think and consider what it says and how you keep bees?

“Beekeepers are responsible for managing their bees and their colonies with respect and due diligence. Letting your bees sort it out for themselves with a “may the toughest bee survive” attitude borders on criminal neglect. If farmers chose that route with their cattle, homeowners with pets, or even zoos with their hundreds of animals, the powers that be would intervene and take control of those onerous situations. Yet beekeepers, since there is no threat of liability, are allowed (legally) to mistreat, under-treat, or not treat their bees so they do not have adequate protection from the elements, are not safe from pests and diseases, do not have enough food to eat, or some combination of these curses. Why would you let a colony expire for reasons of neglect?”

I know there are some things out of our control that affect the bees’ survivability (your neighbor’s choice to treat or not treat, chemical use outside your property, weather, forage opportunities). But there are some basic things we can do as “keepers of the bees” to help them survive (plant pollinator friendly plants, placement of hives, monitor and treat for diseases, feed if needed, use pollen patties, maintain good equipment, use or raise survivor stock, wrap or insulate you bees for winter, etc). Please learn and do all you can to help your bees.

Bee Happy, Bee Kind and Bee yourself,
Pat Ennis

FBI Club Beekeeping Classes Start Feb 2, 2017
The Friendly Beekeepers of Iowa will be teaching an eight-week beekeeping course on Thursdays at 6:30-8:30pm, starting Feb 2 thru March 23, 2016. The cost of the course will be free, but for first time beekeepers we require you purchase the book, “First Lessons in Beekeeping” by Keith Delaplane, which will be available for $8.00.

A power point presentation provided by Andy Joseph, State Apiarist, follows the “First Lessons in Beekeeping” book that we will use as a course outline. This information will be available the first night of class.

Our club welcomes all levels of beekeepers. Most of us continue to attend the course after the first year, as there is always something new to learn! We are of all ages and willing to help and support all.

Classes will be held at the Calvary Baptist Church, 2708 N Jefferson Way, Indianola, IA 50125.

Please email Judy at jespencejr44@gmail.com with any question you have.

Busy, Busy Bee Queen
Wow, has it been a crazy busy time! I would just like to thank everyone for their help at the State Fair! I had so much fun being able to work with kids during the Kids Expo and making smoothies for people to try. It was just an all around great experience working at the fair! I’m very sad that my reign is coming close to the end, but I can’t wait to see what these last few months have in store for me.
I hope to see everyone at the annual meeting!
Holy Smoke!!

Sometimes we learn vicariously. Sometimes we learn things quite by accident—those are usually costly ones. This fall I became impressed that it would be a good idea to try the oxalic acid treatment for mites. So I bought a wand that came with precious few directions (not that I would have read them anyway...)

I went out to my hives and treated the first two. When I inserted the wand into the third hive, I noticed vapor curling out of various little air slots here and there, thinking that would indicate that the treatment was doing its thing. Three minutes came and went, and since “vapor” was still leaking out, I left it in, (just a minute more...)

When I withdrew the wand, the “vapor” really started coming out, this time sneaking out under the tele cover! That’s when I realized several things simultaneously—I needed to find the fire extinguisher; I needed to move my pickup (standing inches from the hive); and I needed to take that hive apart!

When I got the first two done, the hive was torching away. The top two boxes are now sitting on the grass behind the hive, and the bottom box was flaming about 18 inches in the air. I moved it forward and started flipping frames (only half of them were left by now) into the grass to separate them. I sprinkled water on them out of my spritz bottle, and when I looked underneath the box, there was about a 2-foot wide pile of dead bees on the ground under the box.

Lesson learned the hard way: when you insert the wand into the entrance, be sure you don’t connect with a load of burr comb hanging down from the frames!

The sad tale has a rather happy ending. Thinking all was lost, I left the two upper boxes sitting behind the hive, figuring the bees of the other hives might as well help themselves to the groceries. The day of the tragedy was Friday, and I checked Sat. and Sun. and the boxes were black with robbers. On Monday things were quiet, and I went out to assess what could be saved, I noticed, on one side of one of the upper boxes, a collection of bees, quietly sitting together. When I examined them, there was the queen! So I combined them with another hive that needed a boost, and hope they make the winter.

So would you rather learn vicariously from my error? Or would you like to risk losing one of your hives in a hurry? You may choose.
